AN IDEAL MIX-UP: A WINTER GROUP EXHIBITION AT NEVIN KELLY GALLERY

Exhibition of works by Polish and local artists runs from now through February 24, 2008. A lecture by Nevin J. Kelly on Polish artists featured in the gallery will be held January 26, 2008 at 4 pm followed by refreshments.

Nevin Kelly Gallery presents AN IDEAL MIX-UP, a group exhibition that includes works by the contemporary Polish artists that helped launch the gallery in May 2003 and the many local artists who have joined the gallery along the way. The exhibition, at 1517 U Street, NW, in Washington, DC, celebrates both the gallery's origins and its development as a platform for showcasing emerging trends in local art.

Gallery owner Nevin J. Kelly explains that, "Initially, we had an idea for a 'back to the basics' show featuring only the Polish artists we started with. We decided to show a fuller range of artists who have participated in our development as a gallery and whose work is often hidden from view while our space is devoted to special exhibitions."

Unlike most group shows, which remain static during their entire run, works in this show will be hung and re-hung in stages as works are sold or anchor pieces are moved to share the spotlight.

The exhibition will feature works by local artists Sondra Arkin, Joan Belmar, Ellyn Weiss, Mary Chiaramonte and Laurel Hauler and by Polish artists Edward Dwurnik, Darek Pala, Krzysztof Kokoryn, Pawel Król, Lukasz Huculak and Michal Zaborowski.

AN IDEAL MIX-UP will be on view in the gallery from now until February 24, 2008. A lecture by Nevin J. Kelly on Polish artists featured in the gallery will be held January 26, 2008 at 4 pm followed by refreshments.

Select images of the artists' works are available on the Gallery's website, and high-resolution images are available upon request: <http://www.nevinkellygallery.com/artists>
